Joslin Lumber Co. Moves Into New, Larger Store

Jack Brooks and Maynard MacFadden, partners in the Joslin Lumber Co., have announced the opening of their new store at 1790 Carson Street.

Formerly located in a smaller building next to the new structure, the change marks an expansion in the business, Brooks said.

Opened first in 1949 by Brooks and the late Melville Joslin, the business has grown to the point where the new, larger, modern store became necessary for the trade, Brooks disclosed.

The firm specializes in all building materials and lumber, and handles a complete line of paint, tools, and building accessories.

Among the well-known lines of building materials featured by Joslin Lumber are Dutch Boy paints, Stanley tools and Tension Tite screens.
